TIGERS JOIN FOUR SCHOOLS IN NEW LOOP

Circleville High to Compete In League With Central Ohio Institutions.

Circleville high school has joined with the high schools of Bexley, Granville, Westerville and Grandview to create a new athletic league in central Ohio. No name has been given to the new organization as the boys and girls of the member schools are to have the opportunity of naming the new league. It will begin to function Jan. 1, 1930.

Organization and schedule were completed at a meeting of representatives from the five schools held at Bexley high school Tuesday afternoon. R. E. Kessler, principal of Bexley and Bonita Jamison, principal of Grandview, are the temporary officers of the organization.

The league schedule in basketball will occupy the attention of the schools during the months of January and February. Each school will play every other school twice during the season—once at home and once away. Championships will be determined at the close of each season by a point system. A school will be credited with two points for a victory, one point for a tie and no point for a defeat.

Circleville high school will not be a member of any league during the coming football season. This was made necessary by the differences in the constitutions of the South Central Ohio Athletic league from which they recently withdrew and the new league. The football schedule will soon be completed. It will be found that it will include some schools of the S. C. O. league and some of the new league as well as the non-league opponents which have been on the Circleville schedule.

All schools in the new league are virtually of the same size and competition promises to be very keen. The authorities present at the meeting Thursday afternoon were very enthusiastic about the new league. Pupils at the local school are well pleased with the change and give promise of a greater interest in inter scholastic activities.

BOONE HUNTER IS ACQUITTED

Jury Frees Him of Grand Larceny Charge After 40 Minutes' Deliberation.

Boone Hunter, formerly of Williamsport, was declared not guilty of a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of four hogs from Harry McGhee, Williamsport, by a jury in the Pickaway-co common pleas court Tuesday afternoon.

During the trial, which started Monday, Judge Dresbach, defense counsel appointed by the court, insisted that Hunter did not steal the hogs, but took them from the J. B. Johnson farm on the order of his employer, C. R. Boggs, livestock buyer. Only one defense witness, F. J. Peck, of the Farmers' National bank, Williamsport, was called and he testified concerning Boggs' business transactions through the bank.

The state was represented by Prosecutor Emmitt L. Crist and Attorney C. A. Weldon.

The case was given to the jury at 3 p. m. Tuesday and 40 minutes later it returned a verdict of not guilty. Hunter still faces trial on two more indictments, one charging him with breaking and entering and the other charging him with the non-support of an illegitimate child.

The jury in the case was composed of Turney Pontius, foreman; John Mack, C. O. Smith, Mrs. Stanley Glick, Miss Mary Porter, Frank Stout, William Razor, Harlin G. Guy, Harry Cupp, John Mogan, Al Good and Mrs. Harry Hill.

Big Cigarette War Threatens Grocer Chains

NEW YORK, April 17— Severe retaliatory measures in the year-old, "cigarette war," now raging throughout the country, loomed today with the announcement by D. A. Schulte, president of the Schulte retail stores company, prices would be "cut to the bone," should the present price cutting situation extend beyond 60 days.

If Schulte's virtual ultimatum is unheeded it is probable that the Schulte company and the United Cigar stores will institute the most drastic price cut yet seen with cigarettes selling at bargain prices.

Schulte assauled the price-cutting tactics of the industry at a stockholders' meeting and asserted "rockbottom prices" for cigarettes would be instituted unless a truce is signed within 60 days.

It was charged at the meeting that grocery chain stores had started the competition and that "even millionaires are smoking 20 cigarettes for 12 1-2 cents."

OBTAINS JUDGMENT FROM EX-BANKER

A judgment for $25,206.76 against E. Quimby Smith, former president of the First National bank of Mt. Sterling, was obtained Friday afternoon by A. E. Everson, receiver for the Franklin-co common pleas court at Columbus, O.

Everson charged Smith owed $24,413.33 as part of the assessment placed against the stockholders by the comptroller of U. S. currency after the bank had suspended operations May 18, 1928. Judge H. S. Core granted the judgment, which included interest.

The Columbus convention is, in effect, a joint meeting of the Ohio Retail Dry Goods association, the Ohio Valley Shoe Retailers' association and the Ohio Retail Clothiers and Furnishers' association. Upwards of 3000 merchants in these classifications are expected for the four-day session. There will also be sessions for Ohio retail secretaries and Secretary Parrett will likely attend.

HARRISBURG'S FIRE CLAIMS THREE LIVES

Mother and Two Sons Are Dead—Another Boy Fighting To Cheat Death.

The death toll in the fire at Harrisburg Monday night at the Harris home climbed to three Tuesday. James Harris, 12, died at Mt. Carmel hospital. His mother, Wanda Harris, 32, and his brother, Harold, 4, had previously died from their burns.

Another brother, Wilbur, 10, is fighting for his life at Mt. Carmel hospital where he was semi-conscious Wednesday from burns about his head and body.

Warner Harris, father of the lads, and David Harris, their grandfather, were severely burned but will recover.

TWO ESCAPE INJURY

Mildred, 4, and Donald, 4 months, other members of the family, escaped injury because they were sleeping with their parents on the lower floor of the home which ignited when an incubator in a second-story bedroom exploded. The three older boys and their grandfather were sleeping in that room. Mr. and Mrs. Harris were burned when they rushed to the aid of the screaming children.

Neighbors aided in carrying the injured from the house and in extinguishing the flames, which were confined to the upper bedroom and the roof.

Triple funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in Harrisburg M. E. church. Burial will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery by P. E. Norris, Harrisburg. Rev. A. P. Kinney and Rev. H. C. Elliott will officiate.

LOCAL YOUTH COPS' MASCOT

John Metzger, 13, Joins Columbus Police Team Since Leaving Circleville.

John Metzger, 13, has risen to fame since he moved to Columbus less than a year ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Metzger, formerly of E. Mound-st. His father formerly farmed in Pickaway-twp. and now is an employe of the American Railroad Express Co. in Columbus.

John is probably the proudest boy in Starling Junior high school in Columbus, because though he has only been in Columbus since last summer he already hobnobs with members of the police department and is a friend to all of them.

John has been adopted by the police baseball team. He is the team's official bat boy and mascot. He's present at every game, both in and out of town. The job is his delight. John says policemen and ball players are his heroes.

"We wouldn't think of starting a game without John," Capt. Ora Holzapfel, manager of the team, declared. "He's always right there when we need him."

"It's a great job," says John. "I carry bats, run after balls and take water to the players. I get a lot of balls and bats for nothing. Besides, Captain Holzapfel gave me a police ball hat. I wear it all the time and all the other kids wish they had one like it. When I get older I'm going to be a policeman and play on the team."

RADIO FANS WILL HEAR WSAI AGAIN

Circleville radio fans will now be able to tune in the Red network programs at night through station WSAI, Cincinnati, owned by the Crosley Radio Corp., which has been granted a temporary license by the Federal Radio commission to resume broadcasting at night, according to Powell Crosley, Jr., president.

The station was assigned to 1330 kilocycles, with full time privileges until May 1, he said. WSAI formerly broadcast on a frequency of 800 kilocycles and has been operating only during daylight hours since Nov. 11. Red network programs of the National Broadcasting Co. will be relayed to Cincinnati again under the temporary license, and programs will be resumed this week.

SMITH AND BELL CAME OUT HERE
WHERE SMITH WAS STRUCK
WHERE SMITH'S BODY WAS FOUND
WHERE BELL AND MRS BROWN TOOK TAXI

In the background of the strange demise of Arthur Morgan Smith, Cleveland, Ohio, left, millionaire, following an argument with Samuel W. Bell outside the exclusive Hotel Marguery in New York, lurks the secret love affair of Bell, held in homicide charges, and Mrs. Robert L. Brown, Lexington, Ky., matron. Bell is being held by the police without bail pending the outcome of investigation into the finding of Smith, fatally injured in the gutter, outside the hotel, and Mrs. Brown is being held as material witness. Bell is alleged to have objected strenuously to Smith's attentions to Mrs. Brown following a party in Mrs. Robert Schnette's Hotel Marguery apartment, and to have pushed Smith into the gutter. The photo-diagram above shows the principal scenes in the drama.

'SCARFACE AL' CAPONE BROKE

Chicago's Gangland Chief Reported To Face Serious Financial Crisis.

(Copyright 1929 by I. N. S.)

CHICAGO, April 17.—"Scarface Al" Capone is broke.

Not only is the gang chieftain facing serious financial problems but almost his entire organization is facing the worst crisis of its existence. Hundreds of his Chicago liquor depots are closed. His "alky runners" can only bring in a negligible amount of liquor.

Two factors have brought about the virtual downfall of the gangster, it became known, today, by International News Service. These are, first, the election of State's Attorney John Swanson and, second, the gangland "massacre" of seven members of George "Bugs" Moran's gang.

Sick and disgusted with conditions, the closing of his depots and vice haunts, Capone, three days ago, defied the federal grand jury of Chicago and left for Florida, it became known. He went to the palatial estate in Florida which, it was generally believed, he owned and maintained. Capone does not own this home at Miami. He paid only $5,000 "down" for it and the estate is heavily mortgaged. A note amounting to more than $30,000 is now due and Capone is frankly worrying where he is to obtain the money to meet the note.

Jackie Guzik, "brains" of the Capone organization and right hand man of Capone, has his $100,000 home in Chicago "up for sale" to the highest bidder and Guzik with his family intends to live in a downtown hotel here.

The little money that Capone now has is in his wife's name and is composed of bonds. Guzik is admittedly broke.

Capone, he said, is broke because he is too "big-hearted," entertains lavishly in his rented Florida home, approximately 50 guests every night, and because he never can refuse to lend men money—money they never repay. The income from his $75,000,000 vice, liquor and gambling syndicate has been cut off abruptly in the last few months but his heavy payroll has continued.

SEATTLE RESIDENT ENJOYS HERALD

Mrs. George Bonner, formerly of Circleville, and now a resident of Seattle, Wash., wrote a letter to The Herald asking for a back edition of the paper that had failed to reach her. Mrs. Bonner said she loked forward to receiving The Herald as she enjoyed the "home town news" and missed it when she didn't get it.

This letter is one of many that arrive at the office from former Circleville folks who say that they thoroughly enjoy reading The Circleville Herald.

Mrs. Bonner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Opphile, of S. Scioto-st.

Bennie Grofill of near Kohtown is being treated for tonsils and adenoids by Dr. C. E. Dickinson, of Columbus.

Honor Planned For Originator Of Brass Rail

TRENTON, N. J., April 17 — Staid solons of the New Jersey state senate chuckled throatily today over the introduction of a resolution whereby $200 would be solemnly appropriated to commemorate the birth of the man who originated the pre-Volstead decoration, a brass rail in front of bars.

The measure, introduced by Senator Alexander Simpson, wily political foe of Governor Morgan Larson, was in the nature of a burlesque on the state executive.

"I am reliably informed that today marks the 200th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Reardon," Simpson said. "He originated the brass rail in front of the American bar, thus proving that a man could enjoy himself — notwithstanding the fact that he did not have both feet on the ground.

"The birth of this great philanthropist should be properly celebrated. It is hoped that government snoopers will not interfere with this fitting celebration."

BABE RUTH IS BENEDICT NOW

Sultan of Swat Married To Former Follies Girl At Morning Ceremony.

NEW YORK, April 17 — Babe Ruth, the well known club man, was married at dawn today. It was a quiet ceremony—except for the flashlights.

The bride was dark-haired, pretty Mrs. Claire Hodgson, former actress, and was not as tall as George Herman's favorite baseball bat.

"I've got a new manager now," said the Babe with a boyish grin after the simple ceremony and low mass at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church.

Then the big fellow kissed his new manager.

The Babe got up early to do the trick. But not early enough. He had set the ceremony for 6:30 o'clock this morning in an informal invitation to newspapermen issued through his syndicate manager, Christy Walsh.

But Babe jumped the gun and the ceremony was over at 5:55 a. m.

Perhaps just to show that the boys were on the job, a flashlight boomed in the church as the Babe asserted, "I do" to the famous clerical question.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lovell, of Scarsdale, were respectively best man and matron of honor at the ceremony.

Mrs. C. L. [illegible], the mother of the bride, and the bride's brother were in attendance. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Rosenzweig, Emery C. Perry, of Chicago, and fellow parishioners of the bride.

None of Babe Ruth's comrades on the New York Yankee baseball team were discernable. Even Lou Gehrig, Babe's "buddy," was absent.

"I got up too early for them, I guess," chuckled the Babe.

ASSERT BREAD LAWS BROKEN

Stale Product Is Bought and Sold Elsewhere as Fresh, Is Charge.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17—Arrests of 14 bakers, dealers and delivery truck drivers for violation of the bread-exchange laws loomed today in connection with the "pure food" drive being made by the Food and Daries division of the department of Agriculture here.

Affidavits will be filed against these men, it was said, and then it will be up to the civil authorities to make the arrests and prosecute the violators if they care to do so.

Though names of the 14 were not disclosed, it was learned that four of them are from Bellevue and the remainder from Columbus.

The practice, according to O. J. Bailey, chief of the food division, consists in taking up of stale bread at one place and delivering it at another as fresh. It is unlawful, the department head declared.

Many other affidavits will also be filed in connection with the state wide investigation, Bailey promised. He charged that the practice was general among bakers throughout Ohio.

NEW CHARGE FACING GROH

Former Dover Mayor Held For Federal Authorities On Liquor Charge.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., April 17— Ex-Mayor Peter J. Groh, of Dover, Ohio, "down the street from here," is to be taken from jail here today by federal authorities who will escort him to Canton, Ohio, where he will be arraigned in federal court on liquor conspiracy charges.

Groh was arrested by state prohibition agents on March 21, thrown into jail here, charged with accepting a bribe from a state dry agent to allow a mythical carload of liquor to be run through Dover unmolested, and then released under $10,000 bond.

About two weeks later he was "ousted" from the office of mayor Dover, Ohio, a community of 8,000 people, and "twin-sister city" to New Philadelphia.

Yesterday Groh was arraigned on those charges in state court. He pleaded not guilty and was released on bond.

A short time later, the sheriff here arrested the man for Cleveland federal authorities, and put him in jail again. He is to be prosecuted by federal authorities on charges growing out of a raid on the Venice Tavern, Tuscarawas co roadhouse near here, in which dry agents are said to have found liquor and beer. Groh is owner of the building, police alleged.

Armand Joseph of Cincinnati has returned home after a short visit with his uncle, Henry Joseph of N. Scioto-St.

FARM RELIEF, TARIFF PLANS ARE ASSAILED

Republicans Divided on Agricultural Legislation—Democrats Plan Battle.

WASHINGTON, April 17 — The political honeymoon that all new presidents enjoy until they crash head-on into congress was at an end today so far as President Hoover is concerned.

With the echo of his first message still reverberating around the halls on Capitol Hill, it became readily apparent that Mr. Hoover's ideas on tariff and farm relief are in for a period of rough sledding in the congress that rode into power with him. There is the natural opposition of the Democrats, of course, but the extent of disagreement within his own party is wider than had been generally anticipated.

If the quite general grumblings of the opening days is translated into effective oppositions, it is wholly probable that dog-days will see the first session of the 71st congress still laboring and sweltering in Washington heat.

FARM PLAN OPPOSED

Summarized, the situation affecting Mr. Hoover's recommendations to the new congress, follows:

Agriculture—Many Republicans from the grain-belt are either openly antagonistic or quietly dissatisfied with the farm proposals. The senate agriculture committee is threatening to include in the bills the so-called debenture plan, which Mr. Hoover has never endorsed, which he ignored in his message, but which his friends say he does not approve.

Privately, they are criticizing his message for "lack of definiteness" on specific provisions. The house agriculture committee is bringing out another bill which members believe [illegible] Hoover ideas, but the farm organizations have already [illegible] tear into it with savage criticism and that fact, coupled with the natural Democratic opposition, is having some effect on wavering Republicans from the [illegible] who are under obligations to the farm organizations for [illegible] support.

TARIFF UNDER FIRE

Tariff — The Democrats are massing solidly against the president's tariff recommendations and the Republicans are widely split on his specific proposal for changing the basis of valuation from European to American in some schedules. While there is general support for limited upward revision, instead of general revision, party leaders are fearful that once it gets onto the floor the you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours spirit that is always present when it comes down to voting on specific schedules will play havoc with the limitation plans. There is also considerable opposition to giving the tariff commission any broader powers as recommended by Mr. Hoover.

Immigration — The president recommended repeal or suspension of the National Origins clause, which becomes operative on July 1. Leadership in the fight against this will come from the president's own party. Senator David A. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, will lead it, and back of him and flooding congress with appeals and propaganda stand a long list of patriotic and defense organizations, including the American Legion and the D. A. R.

MELLON ASSAILED

There will also be some sniping over the reapportionment and census legislation, the only other two matters dealt with by the president in his inaugural message to the new congress.

Some further embarrassment may be in store for the president in the inquiry got under way this morning in the senate judiciary committee and concerning the right of Andrew W. Mellon to continue as secretary of the treasury.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

W. V. Stout was taken to his home in Stoutsville Wednesday morning in the E. M. Crites' invalid car from Grant hospital in Columbus. Mr. Stout has been at the Columbus hospital for the past three weeks. His condition is critical.

CHICAGO, April 17.—"Scarface Al" Capone is broke.

Not only is the gang chieftain facing serious financial problems but almost his entire organization is facing the worst crisis of its existence. Hundreds of his Chicago liquor depots are closed. His "alky runners" can only bring in a negligible amount of liquor.

Two factors have brought about the virtual downfall of the gangster, it became known today by International News Service. These are, first, the election of State's Attorney John Swanson and, second, the gangland "massacre" of seven members of George "Bugs" Moran's gang.

Sick and disgusted with conditions, the closing of his depots and vice haunts, Capone, three days ago, defied the federal grand jury of Chicago and left for Florida, it became known. He went to the palatial estate in Florida which, it was generally believed, he owned and maintained. Capone does not own this home at Miami. He paid only $5,000 "down" for it and the estate is heavily mortgaged. A note amounting to more than $30,000 is now due and Capone is frankly worrying where he is to obtain the money to meet the note.

Jackie Guzik, "brains" of the Capone organization and right hand man of Capone, has his $100,000 home in Chicago "up for sale" to the highest bidder and Guzik with his family intends to live in a downtown hotel here.

The little money that Capone now has is in his wife's name and is composed of bonds. Guzik is admittedly broke.

Capone, he said, is broke because he is too "big-hearted," entertains lavishly in his rented Florida home, approximately 50 guests every night, and because he never can refuse to lend men money—money they never repay. The income from his $75,000,000 vice, liquor and gambling syndicate has been cut off abruptly in the last few months but his heavy payroll has continued.

SEATTLE RESIDENT ENJOYS HERALD

Mrs. George Bonner, formerly of Circleville, and now a resident of Seattle, Wash., wrote a letter to The Herald asking for a back edition of the paper that had failed to reach her. Mrs. Bonner said she loked forward to receiving The Herald as she enjoyed the "home town news" and missed it when she didn't get it.

This letter is one of many that arrive at the office from former Circleville folks who say that they thoroughly enjoy reading The Circleville Herald.

Mrs. Bonner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Opphile, of S. Scioto-st.

Bennie Grofill of near Robtown is being treated for tonsils and adenoids by Dr. C. B. Dickinson, of Columbus.

Honor Planned For Originator Of Brass Rail

TRENTON, N. J., April 17 — Staid solons of the New Jersey state senate chuckled throatily today over the introduction of a resolution whereby $200 would be solemnly appropriated to commemorate the birth of the man who originated the pre-Volstead decoration, a brass rail in front of bars.

The measure, introduced by Senator Alexander Simpson, wily political foe of Governor Morgan Larson, was in the nature of a burlesque on the state executive.

"I am reliably informed that today marks the 200th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Reardon," Simpson said. "He originated the brass rail in front of the American bar, thus proving that a man could enjoy himself — notwithstanding the fact that he did not have both feet on the ground.

"The birth of this great philanthropist should be properly celebrated. It is hoped that government snoopers will not interfere with this fitting celebration."

BABE RUTH IS BENEDICT NOW

Sultan of Swat Married To Former Follies Girl At Morning Ceremony.

NEW YORK, April 17 — Babe Ruth, the well known club man, was married at dawn today. It was a quiet ceremony—except for the flashlights.

The bride was dark-haired, pretty Mrs. Claire Hodgson, former actress, and was not as tall as George Herman's favorite baseball bat.

"I've got a new manager now," said the Babe with a boyish grin after the simple ceremony and low mass at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church.

Then the big fellow kissed his new manager.

The Babe got up early to do the trick. But not early enough. He had set the ceremony for 6:30 o'clock this morning in an informal invitation to newspapermen issued through his syndicate manager, Christy Walsh.

But Babe jumped the gun and the ceremony was over at 5:55 a. m.

Perhaps just to show that the boys were on the job, a flashlight boomed in the church as the Babe asserted, "I do" to the famous clerical question.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lovell, of Scarsdale, were respectively best man and matron of honor at the ceremony.

Mrs. C. L. Levitt, the mother of the bride, and the bride's brother were in attendance. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Rosenzweig, Emery C. Perry, of Chicago, and fellow parishioners of the bride.

None of Babe Ruth's comrades on the New York Yankee baseball team were discernible. Even Lou Gehrig, Babe's "buddy," was absent.

"I got up too early for them, I guess," chuckled the Babe.

ASSERT BREAD LAWS BROKEN

Stale Product Is Bought and Sold Elsewhere as Fresh, Is Charge.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17—Arrests of 14 bakers, dealers and delivery truck drivers for violation of the bread-exchange laws loomed today in connection with the "pure food" drive being made by the Food and Daries division of the department of Argiculture here.

Affidavits will be filed against these men, it was said, and then it will be up to the civil authorities to make the arrests and prosecute the violators if they care to do so.

Though names of the 14 were not disclosed, it was learned that four of them are from Bellevue and the remainder from Columbus.

The practice, according to O. J. Bailey, chief of the food division, consists in taking up of stale bread at one place and delivering it at another as fresh. It is unlawful, the department head declared.

Many other affidavits will also be filed in connection with the state wide investigation, Bailey promised. He charged that the practice was general among bakers throughout Ohio.

NEW CHARGE FACING GROH

Former Dover Mayor Held For Federal Authorities On Liquor Charge.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., April 17— Ex-Mayor Peter J. Groh, of Dover, Ohio, "down the street from here," is to be taken from jail here today by federal authorities who will escort him to Canton, Ohio, where he will be arraigned in federal court on liquor conspiracy charges.

Groh was arrested by state prohibition agents on March 21, thrown into jail here, charged with accepting a bribe from a state dry agent to allow a mythical carload of liquor to be run through Dover unmolested, and then released under $10,000 bond.

About two weeks later he was "ousted" from the office of mayor Dover, Ohio, a community of 8,000 people, and "twin-sister city" to New Philadelphia.

Yesterday Groh was arraigned on those charges in state court. He pleaded not guilty and was released on bond.

A short time later, the sheriff here arrested the man for Cleveland federal authorities, and put him in jail again. He is to be prosecuted by federal authorities on charges growing out of a raid on the Venice Tavern, Tuscarawas co roadhouse, near here, in which dry agents are said to have found liquor and beer. Groh is owner of the building, police alleged.

FARM RELIEF, TARIFF PLANS ARE ASSAILED

Republicans Divided on Agricultural Legislation—Democrats Plan Battle.

WASHINGTON, April 17 —The political honeymoon that all new presidents enjoy until they crash head-on into congress was at an end today so far as President Hoover is concerned.

With the echo of his first message still reverberating around the halls on Capitol Hill, it became readily apparent that Mr. Hoover's ideas on tariff and farm relief are in for a period of rough sledding in the congress that rode into power with him. There is the natural opposition of the Democrats, of course, but the extent of disagreement within his own party is wider than had been generally anticipated.

If the quite general grumblings of the opening days is translated into effective oppositions, it is wholly probable that dog-days will see the first session of the 71st congress still laboring and sweltering in Washington heat.

FARM PLAN OPPOSED

Summarized, the situation affecting Mr. Hoover's recommendations to the new congress, follows:

Agriculture—Many Republicans from the grain-belt are either openly antagonistic or quietly dissatisfied with the farm proposals. The senate agriculture committee is threatening to include in its bills the so-called debenture plan, which Mr. Hoover has never endorsed, which he ignored in his message, but which his friends say he does not approve.

Privately, they are criticising his message for "lack of definiteness" on specific provositions. The house agriculture committee is bringing out another bill which members believe expresses the Hoover ideas, but the farm organizations have already begun to tear into it with savage criticism, and that fact, coupled with the natural Democratic opposition, is having some effect on wavering Republicans from the mid-west who are under obligations to the farm organizations for past support.

TARIFF UNDER FIRE

Tariff — The Democrats are massing solidly against the president's tariff recommendations, and the Republicans are widely split on his specific proposal for changing the basis of valuation from European to American in some schedules. While there is general support for limited upward revision, instead of general revision, party leaders are fearful that once it gets onto the floor the you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours spirit that is always present when it comes down to voting on specific schedules will play havoc with the limitation plans. There is also considerable opposition to giving the tariff commission any broader powers as recommended by Mr. Hoover.

Immigration — The president recommended repeal or suspension of the National Origins clause, which becomes operative on July 1. Leadership in the fight against this will come from the president's own party. Senator David A. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, will lead it, and back of him and flooding congress with appeals and propaganda stand a long list of patriotic and defense organizations, including the American Legion and the D. A. R.

MELLON ASSAILED

There will also be some sniping over the reapportionment and census legislation, the only other two matters dealt with by the president in his inaugural message to the new congress.

Some further embarrassment may be in store for the president in the inquiry got under way this morning in the senate judiciary committee and concerning the right of Andrew W. Mellon to continue as secretary of the treasury.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

W. V. Stout was taken to his home in Stoutsville Wednesday morning in the E. M. Crites' invalid car from Grant hospital in Columbus. Mr. Stout has been at the Columbus hospital for the past three weeks. His condition is critical.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Killian, 211 E. Mill-st, announce the birth of a son on Tuesday, April 16.

Another s to have the farmer cut his stalks as they do in this y. The stalks are shredded shredder in the field, baled and brought to the mill by teamsters employed by the mill. Both systems have been tried out, and the gathering of the corn by the corn machine seems to be the more adaptable and satisfactory, as it does away with the hiring of corn husking, which is a big saving to the corn grower.

In a day's run the Mid-West turns out a strip of box board seven inches wide, 142 miles long. In one year this strip would be 42,600 miles and would encircle the earth once and still have 17,600 miles left counting 300 working days in the year.

EXPERIMENTS PLANNED

The officials of the Container company of America, which practically owns and controlls the Mid-West company or cognizant of the location and value of their plant and will in due time make experiments in cornstalks for making pulp for paper use.

It is understood that the same machinery now used for making pulp out of straw, can be used for making pulp from cornstalks, but to use both field products would require another mill. It it estimated that $1,000,000 will be required to build a mill of 100 tons capacity and $500,000 in raw material, a total of $1,500,000.

The figures are not so staggering, the replacement value of the Mid-West mill will easily reach a half million dollars. The present owners, The Mid-West, bought the mill from the General Electric Co. The mill was built in 1885 by the Portage Strawboard Co. and has been operated continuously, with exception of a year during the settlement of the estate of Ohio C. Barbet, of Barberton, who practically owned the mill at his death. His widow did not want to bother with the many little incidents due to the running a mill and it went on the market. The mill did not bring half its face value. The General Electric Co made money out of the transaction.

A visit through the mill by the writer of this article, disclosed that it is using the same digesters, the same dryers that were in use 45 years ago. In the beater room, where the pulp is washed free of lime and other foreign ingredients, six sheet iron beaters have replaced 22 former old style beaters made of wood.

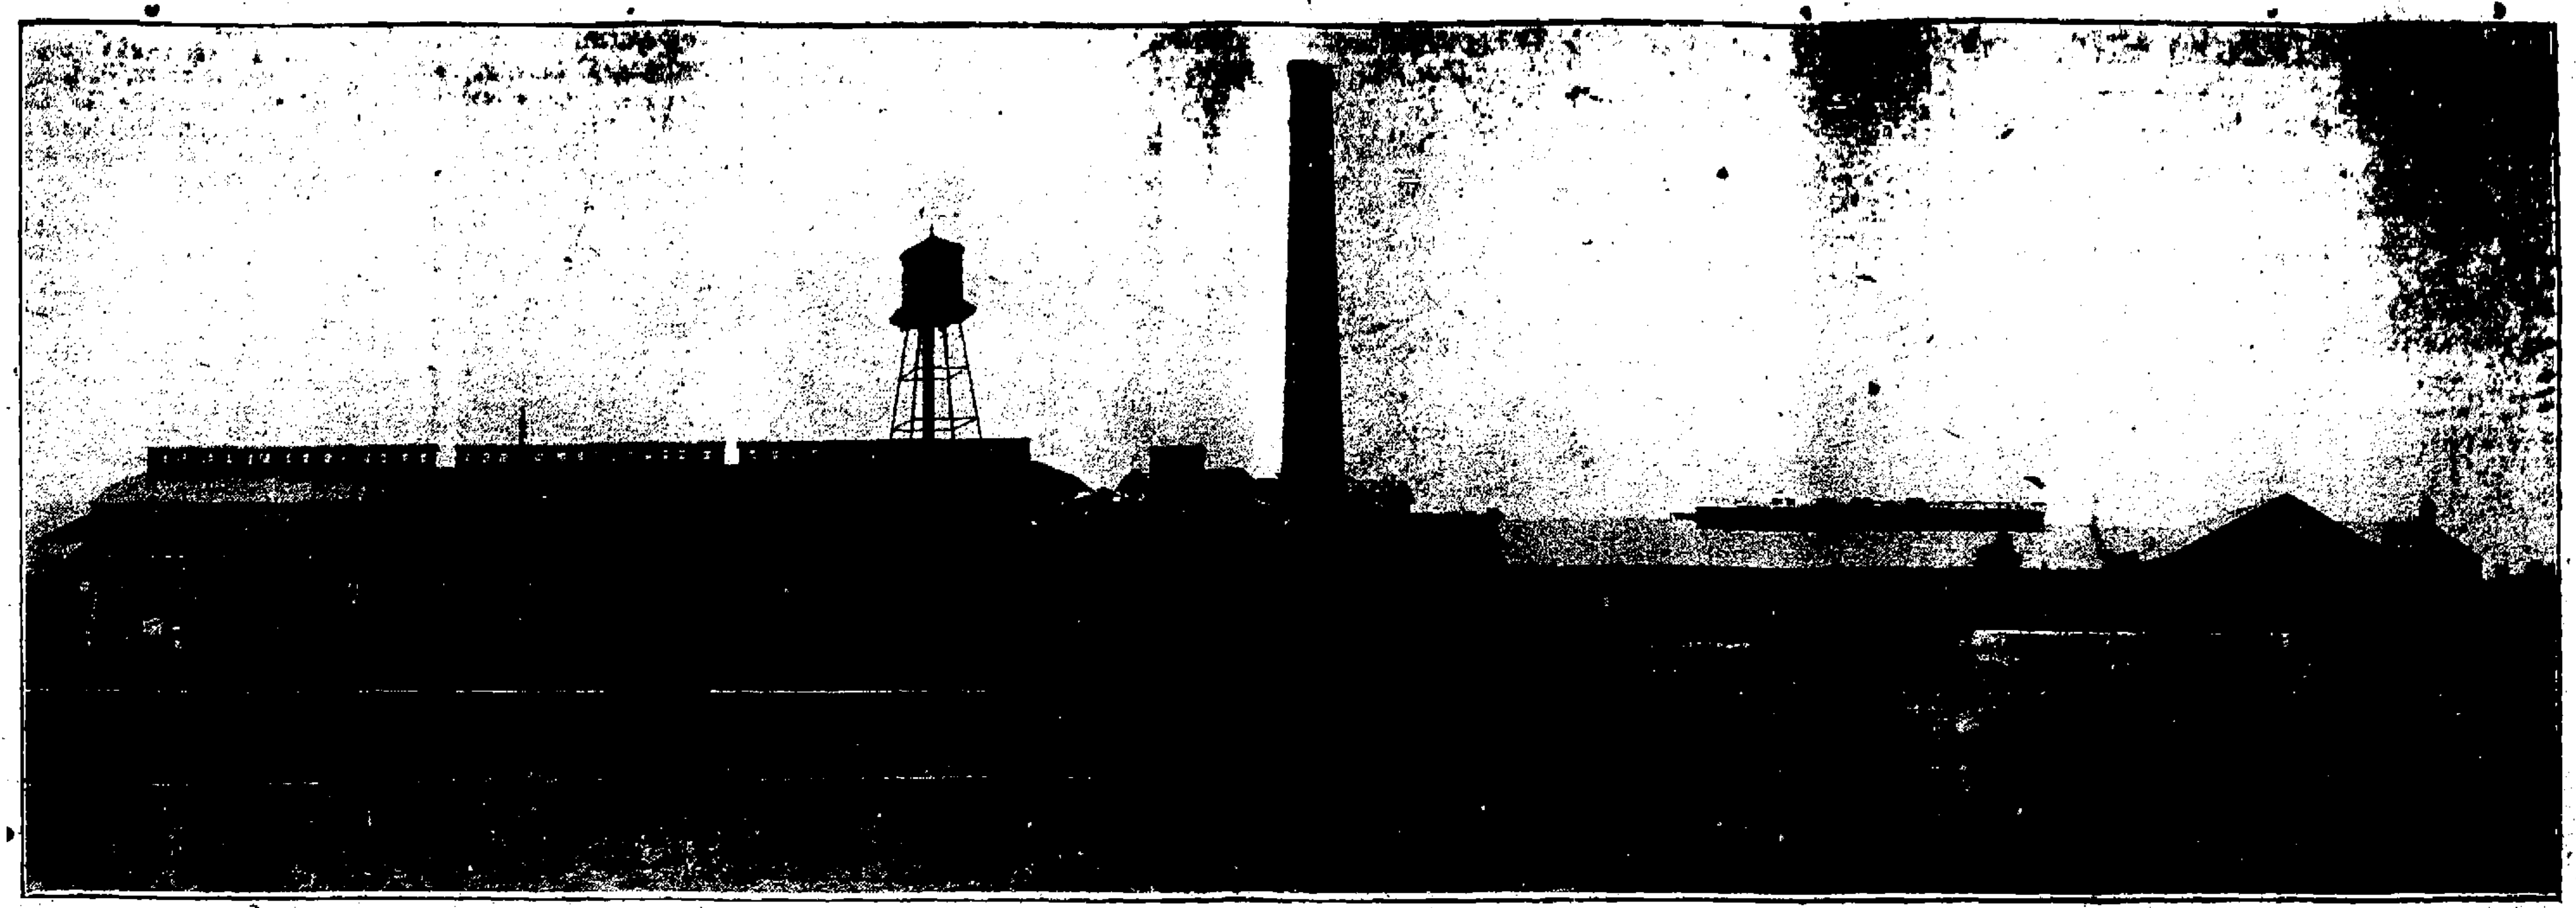
Some of the old stairways have been replaced with modern steel fire proof stairways with balastrades. Gradually the old mill is being replaced with modern furnishings and equipment. One of the old pumps is still doing service.

OLD EMPLOYES ACTIVE

Johnny Moore, who was an employe of the mill when it started, is at the mill right on the job daily. He has charge of the sprinkling system. Robert M. Gerhart, the efficient receiving clerk, who issues supplies, has a little store of his own, and you must have a requisition before anything is issued from his department. "Bob" has been on the job two score years. Jack Mavis, the foreman of the straw yard, has been in the employ of the mill for over 30 years. It seems when they get a hold of a good man, the company sticks to him.

Mr. Mavis handled 12325 loads of straw by teams in the years, 1898-9. These were unusual years. Since the company has installed tractors and straw conveyors which haul the straw to the mill. In 1927 and 1928 the company had on hand 20,000 tons of straw stacked in the yard. This county contributes about one-third of the raw material used by the mill which uses 125 tons of straw daily. Four cars of unslacked lime are used weekly. The actual time devoted to cooking straw is 12 hours. The mill averages 80 tons of the finished product daily.

Mid-West Co. With Its Great Facilities and Large Payroll, May Manufacture Cornstalk Paper Here.



Four Babcock and Wilcox boilers of 350 horsepower each are used in the mill. These boilers use a car of nut and slack coal daily. Recently the company installed an emergency hospital, a first aid dispensary to men injured in the mill.

The chemical department, (which has been established since the Mid-West took over the mill), is one of the most valuable adjuncts of the company. James C. Offenbacher is in charge. He has one assistant, Russell Carpenter. Here each car of lime is tested for its calcium content and causticity, coal is tested for its British Thermal units, the manufactured board undergoes a test for its tensile strength, and the liquor used in the pulp, while it goes through the agitator and beater, is analyzed by the chemist.

SPINAGO SCORES AGAIN AS A BLOOD TONIC

Local Man Lauds New Compound For Complete Relief That It Brought Him.

What a wonderful thing it would be for all sufferers to have the many splendid victories of Spinago—the new wonder tonic containing Spinach, over ailments of the stomach, liver, kidney, bowels, nervousness, gas, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuritis, or as a general spring tonic, and now as a wonderful blood tonic, measured for them.

Spinago does not aim to merely give temporary relief, but to bring new and glorious health even in acute and chronic cases, that have resisted all other medicines and treatments.

JAMES MARSHALL.

Just how Spinago performs these wonderful results is being explained daily at the Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville, O. The main ingredient in Spinago is concentrated, dry, powdered Spinach contained in each bottle, in sufficient quantity to produce the beneficial results of a great quantity of fresh Spinach. To this important basic ingredient, the following well known roots, herbs and barks are added: Sarsaparilla, mandrake, dandelion, prickly ash, poke root, gentian, cascara, licorice, burdock and wild cherry scientifically compounded with other valuable ingredients of recognized medicinal value under a process and in proportion known only to the manufacturer.

Is it not wise to profit from the experience of others? Then read every word of the statement made by Mr. James Marshall, 154 York St., who has lived in Circleville for about ten years, and is now employed by the Sturm & Dillard Co.

"For about five years I had been suffering from impure blood condition, severe headaches which were regular every morning, and also troubled with constipation. During this whole time I tried one medicine and treatment after another from drug stores and doctors.

"I was about discouraged, after having tried so many different medicines over such a long period of time. After hearing of Spinago, which was recommended so highly, I decided to give it a trial; the first bottle did wonders for me, the second bottle did what all other medicines and treatments of which I tried for five years failed to do.

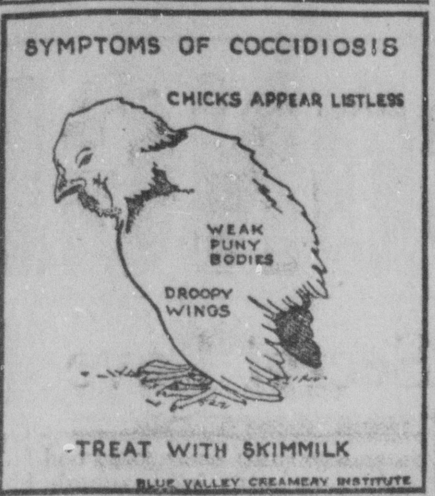
"It gave me complete relief, the first time in years. My blood is now in good condition, I am not troubled any more with breaking out on the skin, I am not troubled now with the morning headaches, after getting up of mornings, my head is clear; I do not feel drowsy and irksome like I formerly did. My bowels are in good shape and my general condition is fine. If other sufferers from stomach trouble, bad blood, and constipation will take my advice and try Spinago, I am sure that they will be thankful for my recommendation."

This new super tonic is being introduced to great crowds every day at the Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville, headquarters for Spinago where it is sold on an absolutely guaranteed basis. It costs only one dollar per bottle and if one, two or six bottles fail to produce the desired results, the money is cheerfully refunded. Why not try Spinago on this plan? You can't lose.—Adv.

Faith of Childhood

Who, if he is honest towards himself, could say that the religion of his manhood was the same as that of his childhood, or the religion of his old age the same as the religion of his manhood? It is easy to deceive ourselves and to say that the most perfect faith is a childlike faith. Nothing can be truer, and the older we grow the more we learn to understand the wisdom of a childlike faith. But before we can learn that, we have first to learn another lesson, namely, to put away childish things. There is the same glow about the setting sun as there is about the rising sun; but there lies between the two a whole world, a journey through the whole sky and over the whole earth. —Prof. Max Muller.

Skimmilk Cure for Baby Chicks



When chicks are thin, emaciated and droopy apply the sour skim milk treatment immediately, warns the Blue Valley Creamy Institute, because the trouble may be caused by minute coccidia in the intestines which poison the chicks. Coccidiosis is a highly infectious disease among young chicks. It occurs mostly when they are between the ages of two and ten weeks.

Microscopic examination is the only positive method of diagnosis. The disease can be prevented to a large extent by rearing chicks on fresh ground every year where there is a good growth of sod. The quarters of the infected chicks should be cleaned daily as long as the trouble is present. The milk treatment is the most satisfactory control method as yet discovered. To carry out this treatment give nothing to drink but milk, either sweet or sour, skim milk or buttermilk. Feed no mash. Feed grain twice daily. The Institute's experts urge feeding sour skim milk as the baby chicks' first meal, after it has been hatched 40 to 50 hours, and favor feeding it continuously until the chicks are six to eight weeks old, longer if a supply is available, as the only source of liquid drink.

he company secured a lot at ville, Ill., and set about to in- l machinery to manufacture from cornstalks obtained n prolific Illinois farms in the rounding country.

was our pleasure several days , while in the private office of local manager, Arthur C. re of the Mid-West Co. to be wn a trade magazine, the paper which was made entirely of stalk pulp. It had a highly hed surface, satiny in appear- It crackles and has the u sound of dynamited silk. a of making paper from lks is not new. It was sug- as far back as 1765. Pa- tself was probably invented tly after the birth of the istian era. A Chinese scientist le some out of the bark of a berry tree. They do it that in Japan today. Cotton and n rags proved the most satis- tory for a long time and for e purposes are best today and bably will continue to be.

iver cities are considered good s for pulp mills for two rea- s; first, huge quantities of wa- are necessary for washing and king the cornstalks in the pro- of making pulp; and second, get rid of the refuse and sur- water used after washing the p. All pulp does not reach the ers. A small percentage is lost the beaters or washers, and ses out with the water.

STALKS VALUABLE

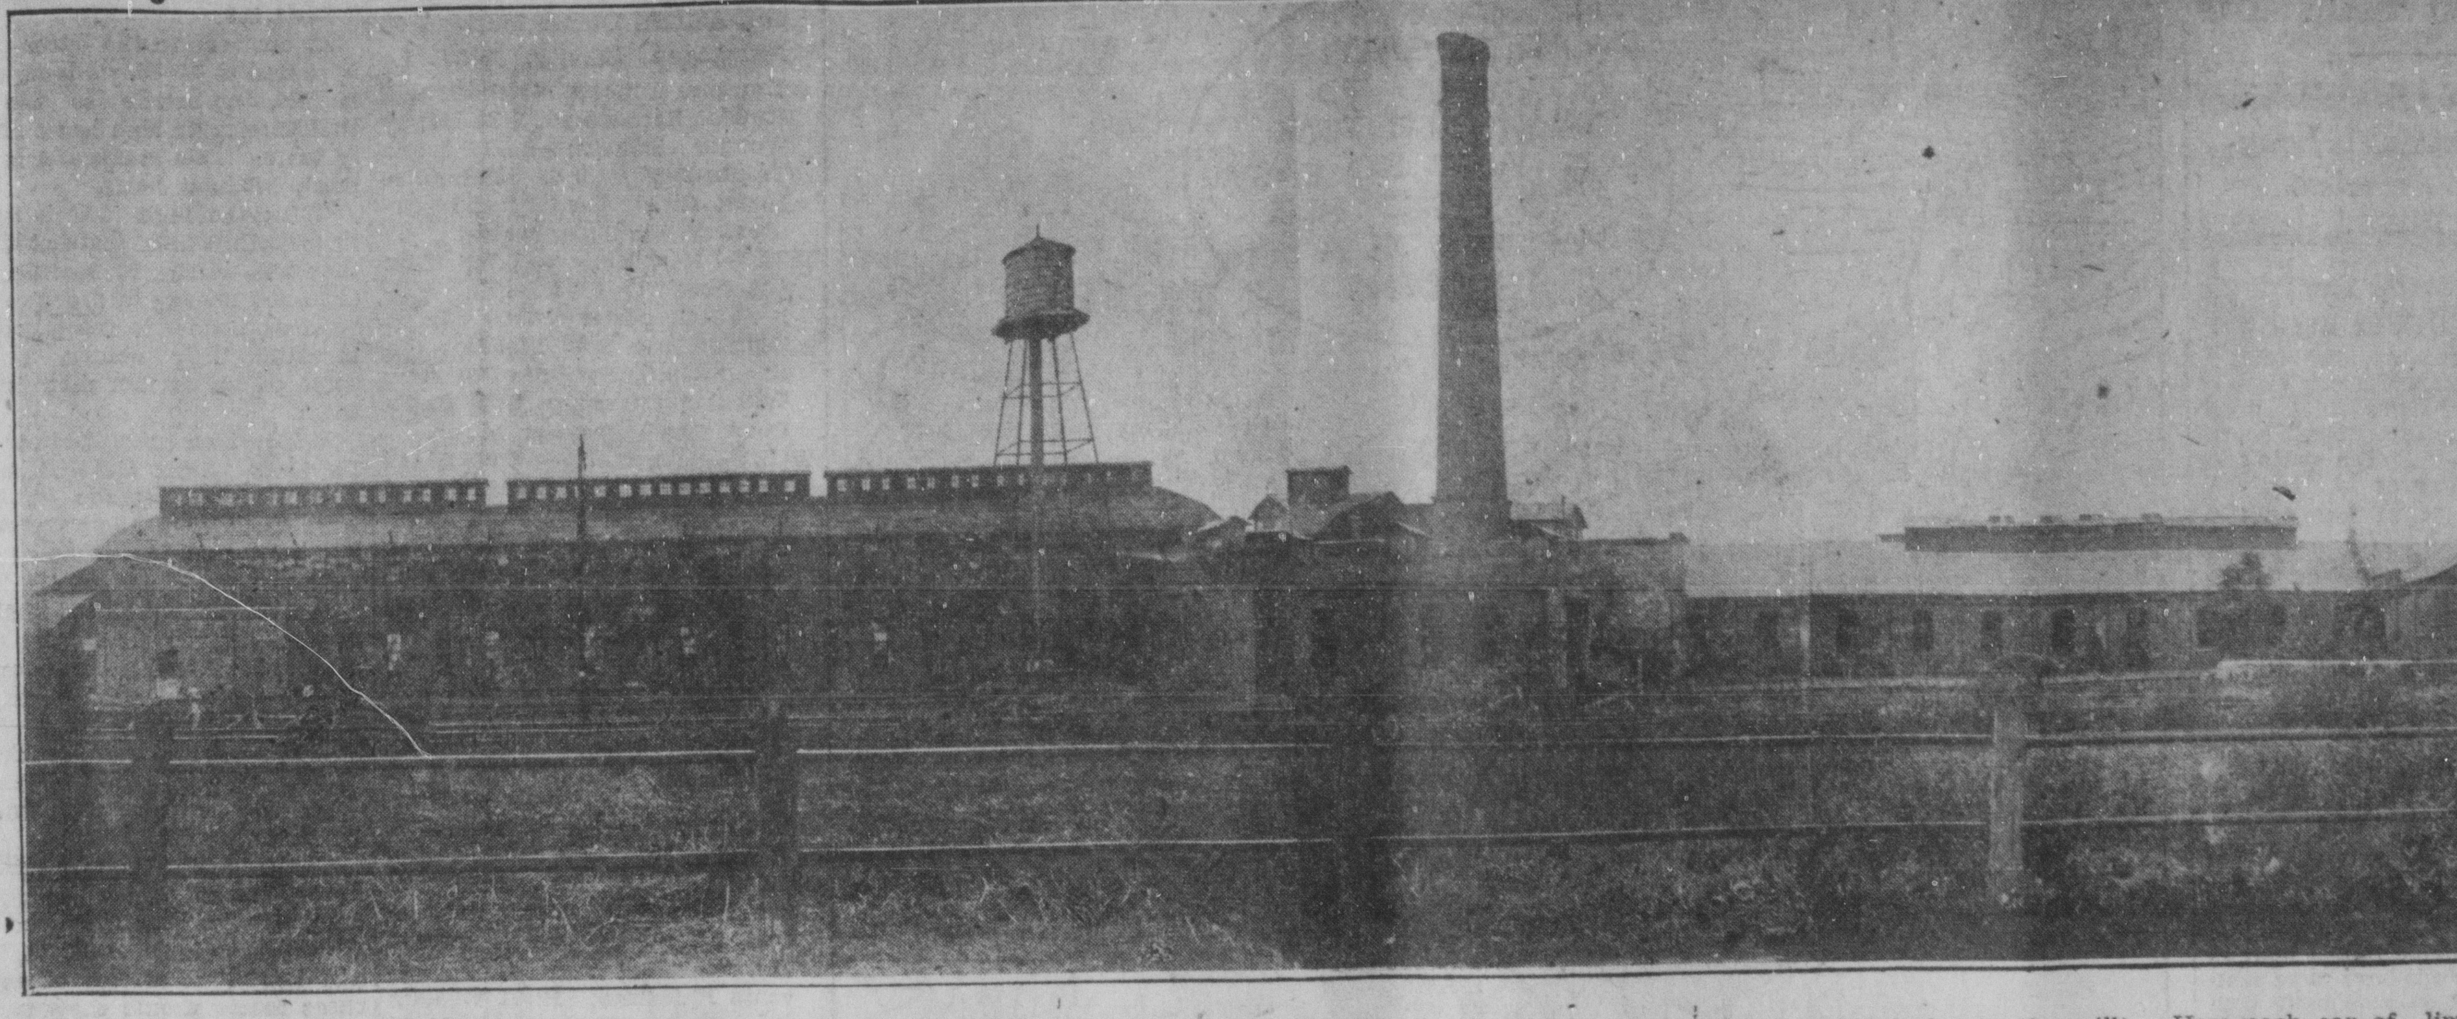
he portentous value of land in county is beyond belief. Fifty rs ago when the straw-board was talked of, farmers placed e value in the location of the l. Before the mill was built, st straw was burned. It was erwards saved and sold to the when it started operations.

ow comes the other by-product nstalks, thousands of tons of ch are destroyed yearly. The ential value of this product of field has never been dreamed Down south they are making on, a celluose product, into silk. is claimed by chemists that re is sufficient celluose in the nstalk, to make all the vege- le silk that we can use.

Corn lands have depreciated in ue since the World war. Wheth- it was due to the interferance the Volstead act, which had a dency to lower the value of n, as it was formally used to ke whiskey, or else due to a eral decline that usually fol- s the reconstruction period is known. But with the advent the use of cornstalk pulp, the mer in Ohio will come back in- his own.

ckaw y-co raises from 100,000 125,000 acres of corn annually. e cornstalk will run close to two s to the acre for which $6 to $8 ton is paid by mills delivered at nt. In some states where corn- lk mills have been established, o ways of getting the stalks to e mill have been introduced. The ll sends a corn cutting machine o the corn field. The farmers n is gathered, husked and ced in the crib. For this ser- e the farmer gives the corn- lks gratis to the mill. Another y is to have the farmer cut his n stalks as they do in this inity. The stalks are shredded a shredder in the field, baled and brought to the mill by teamsters employed by the mill. Both systems have been tried out, and the gathering of the corn by the corn machine seems to be the more adaptable and satisfactory, as it does away with the hiring of corn husking, which is a big saving to the corn grower.

Mid-West Co. With Its Great Facilities and Large Payroll, May Manufacture Cornstalk Paper Here.



In a day's run the Mid-West turns out a strip of box board seven inches wide, 142 miles long. In one year this strip would be 42,600 miles and would encircle the earth once and still have 17,600 miles left counting 300 working days in the year.

EXPERIMENTS PLANNED

The officials of the Container company of America, which practically owns and controlls the Mid-West company or cognizant of the location and value of their plant and will in due time make experiments in cornstalks for making pulp for paper use.

It is understood that the same machinery now used for making pulp out of straw, can be used for making pulp from cornstalks, but to use both field products, would require another mill. It it estimated that $1,000,000 will be required to build a mill of 100 tons capacity and $500,000 in raw material, a total of $1,500,000.

The figures are not so staggering. the replacement value of the Mid-West mill will easily reach a half million dollars. The present owners, The Mid-West, bought the mill from the General Electric Co. The mill was built in 1885 by the Portage Strawboard Co. and has been operated continuously, with exception of a year during the settlement of the estate of Ohio C. Barber, of Barberton, who practically owned the mill at his death. His widow did not want to bother with the many little incidents due to the running a mill and it went on the market. The mill did not bring half its face value. The General Electric Co made money out of the transaction.

A visit through the mill by the writer of this article, disclosed that it is using the same digesters, the same dryers that were in use 45 years ago. In the beater room, where the pulp is washed free of lime and other foreign ingredients, six sheet iron beaters have replaced 22 former old style beaters made of wood.

Some of the old stairways have been replaced with modern steel fire proof stairways with balastrades. Gradually the old mill is being replaced with modern furnishings and equipment. One of the old pumps is still doing service.

OLD EMPLOYES ACTIVE

Johnny Moore, who was an employe of the mill when it started, is at the mill right on the job daily. He has charge of the sprinkling system. Robert M. Gerhart, the efficient receiving clerk, who issues supplies, has a little store of his own, and you must have a requisition before anything is issued from his department. "Bob" has been on the job two score years. Jack Mavis, the foreman of the straw yard, has been in the employ of the mill for over 30 years. It seems when they get a hold of a good man, the company sticks to him.

Mr. Mavis handled 12325 loads of straw by teams in the years, 1898-9. These were unusual years. Since the company has installed tractors and straw conveyors which haul the straw to the mill. In 1927 and 1928 the company had on hand 20,000 tons of straw stacked in the yard. This county contributes about one-third of the raw material used by the mill which uses 125 tons of straw daily. Four cars of unslacked lime are used weekly. The actual time devoted to cooking straw is 12 hours. The mill averages 80 tons of the finished product daily.

Four Babcock and Wilcox boilers of 350 horsepower each are used in the mill. These boilers use a car of nut and slack coal daily. Recently the company installed an emergency hospital, a first aid dispensary to men injured in the mill. The chemical department, (which has been established since the Mid-West took over the mill), is one of the most valuable adjuncts of the company. James C. Offenbacher is in charge. He has one assistant, Russell Carpenter. Here each car of lime is tested for its calcium content and causticity, coal is tested for its British Thermal units, the manufactured board undergoes a test for its tensile strength, and the liquor used in the pulp, while it goes through the agitator and beater, is analyzed by the chemist.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE DAY OF THE LORD—It shall come to pass, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions.—Joel 2:28.

PRAYER—"Come gracious spirit, heavenly Dove, With light and comfort from above.

DIET AND MENTALITY

A scientist, admitting that the average female brain is not quite as "human" as that of the male, assures the ladies the only reason is that through the ages they have done less thinking than their mates. More than that, he promises them equality with the mentally stronger sex if they will devote the next thousand years to intensive thought.

But studies completed by the Yale laboratories of physiologic chemistry and of psychology offer the girls a quicker way to mental equality. The studies, to be sure, were made on rats; and the professors do not say that what is true of rats is true of girls. But after all, of what good is scientific research if a layman may not play with its implications?

The Yale professors studied the effect of stunting on behavior in white rats. They divided otherwise similar rats into three groups, and put two of the groups on a rigorous stunting diet. Then they tried their rats out on a maze which led to good rat food. In every case the normally fat rats were slower at learning the intricate route to food than the dieted ones; and when they were set at a new problem, with a different maze, the stunted animals again showed greater speed. When they were returned to a normal rat diet, and regained their normal weight, the difference in "intelligence" disappeared.

That what is true of white mice may not be true of human beings is indicated by wartime studies which disclosed that the mental efficiency of the German soldiers diminished as their rations were reduced. But let not feminists be discouraged by this. Is there not a world of evidence that many of the world's greatest works of art were conceived and created on an empty stomach?

BASEBALL

The major baseball leagues have opened their seasons with popular acclaim and cheerful box office prospects. Baseball is more commercialized than it used to be, but it is not on that account losing its grip on the public. There are magnates on the players' benches as well as in the owners' sanctums. The king in the counting room is not the only king who is counting out his money.

The multiplying dignitaries and plutocrats of the sport have not spoiled it. It still provides alert competition, dramatic moments, suspense and the thrill of honest battle. Every team wants to win and tries to win.

All the clubs report themselves strengthened for the 1929 fray. The American League race promises to be much tighter this year than last. In the National league the hot rivalry of the last several years will be intensified by the appearance of some of the second column teams of last year as serious contenders for the league crown.

Every club feels like a winner in April. May that frame of mind continue in both leagues until late in the summer, at least. It will not be a successful season in any league, whether major or minor or sand lot, if one team jumps too far in the lead early in the season.

CASCADE TUNNEL BREAKS RECORDS

Bore Through Washington Mountains Is Longest in America.

Giant Cascade Tunnel Ranks Fifth in Length

Among the world's other tunnel projects, the new Cascade bore ranks fifth in length, those exceeding it being in Europe. The world's longest bores are:

Simplon, 65,734 feet (12,4 miles).
St. Gotthard, 48,893 feet (9.26 miles).
Loetschberg, 47,685 feet (9.03 miles).
Mont Cenis, 42,150 feet 7.97 miles).
New Cascade, 41,142 feet 7.79 miles).
Moffatt, 39,560 feet (6.40 miles).
Rogers Pass, 37,540 feet (6.11 miles).

Scenic, Wash.—When a railroad wants an eight-mile tunnel built in three years records have to be shatterd. Hard-bitten pneumatic drill men and horny-handed muckers are looking for new jobs after three years' work in constructing the Cascade bore.

It was three years ago that the Great Northern directors voted to spend $14,000,000 building a tunnel that would eliminate six miles of costly snowsheds, lower the summit of the line 502 feet and discard 1,944 degrees of track curvature. They decided also they wanted it in three years.

In addition to the construction of the tunnel the Great Northern has relocated all but seven miles of the former 56-mile route over the Cascades and the electrification of the 74 miles of line between Wenatchee and Skykomish, which includes the new tunnel. Altogether the project will cost $74,000,000,000.

America's Longest Tunnel.

On December 28, 1925, contractors started tunneling operations. On October 20, 1928, there was a continuous bore and today the finished tunnel, 7.97 miles long, lined with 250,000 cubic yards of concrete, is in use by passenger, mail and freight trains, pulled by mighty electric locomotives. Between these two dates more records were smashed than in a modern Olympiad. The finished tunnel, longest in America, nearly two miles more in length than the recently completed Moffatt bore in Colorado, was drilled by twice the yearly mileage and will show a concreted job, as compared with unlined tunnels of comparable lengths through the European Alps, that took seven to fourteen years.

Drilling crews in the Cascades established a world's record when they excavated 984 feet of the 26 by 18 feet bore in September, 1926. Then in June, 1927, this feat was outdone when 1,164 feet were tunneled during 31 days' work.

The secret of the rapid progress rested with the new plan of drilling a "pioneer" tunnel, paralleling the route of the main bore. From this auxiliary tunnel drifts were run at seven points to the route of the main bore, permitting 1,793 men to work simultaneously. All rock and debris from the big tunnel were removed through the pioneer while concrete workers followed closely behind the completed cut.

Straight as a Needle.

The old railroad line between Scenic and Berne, the east portal, was 18 miles long. Coming from Berne, a train had to climb 1,325 feet, pass through six tunnels and six miles of snow sheds. Five of the tunnels were short, the sixth almost three miles long. Once reaching the summit of the road, the train descended into Scenic, 546 feet in a few miles, almost as hard on the locomotives as pulling up to the top. The weight of a railroad train runs into enormous tonnage and to drag up or hold back on mountain grades is a herculean feat; it costs money, too. The climb is not all the new tunnel saves. If all the old curves were added together they would form just six complete circles, while this new tunnel is as straight as a needle.

The longest railroad tunnel already built in the western hemisphere is the Rogers Pass bore, about six and one-half miles long, on the Canadian Pacific. The new tunnel now ready for through service is one mile longer and large enough for double-tracking facilities. Besides it is the only large tunnel in the world electrified.

State Gets Old Roadbed.

While the railroad intends to abandon its old mountain trackage, the famous roadbeds, surveyed in 1890, have been donated to the state of Washington highway commission, for use as summer scenic automobile routes. All bridges and trestles will be repaired and altered to care for motor travel, providing one of the most stupendous mountain highways in the Far West.

In winter months the roads, buried under deep snow, will be useless unless some method can be devised to keep them clean of drifts, something the railroad, with all its capital and facilities, found difficult to accomplish.

Virtually all of the work was done by machinery and skilled workmen. Electricity, compressed air and dynamite applied with the utmost skill through the most modern machinery characterized the whole project.

What took place in one pioneer heading is typical of the activity at all the many faces. The cycle of

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is preparing wedding plans for her marriage to a handsome local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXVII.

"LILITH would be a good name for an opera singer," mused Dan.

"She was named for her mother," the father said hastily.

The girl smiled and looked at Irene. "Adams first wife was named Lilith. She was a sorceress, wasn't she, mother?"

"I believe that is the tradition," Irene answered in an even tone.

"The Talmud says that," Guinn added.

On next Sunday morning Lilith sang a solo in the church. Her white crepe de Chine dress, whose soft lines made her look slenderer than ever, and a close-fitting little white hat with a blue flower on it showed her gold hair underneath the tiny brim and brought out the blue of her eyes, the pink flush of her cheeks, made her look lovely, with a touch of the unearthly about her. Her eyes had a far-off gaze and her cheeks a more delicate flush as she began to sing.

Irene was sitting in the pew with Pat on one side of her and Tina on the other, with Dan beside Tina, next to the aisle. She had to look past these two to see the choir loft where Lilith was standing.

"Looks like a bobbed-haired angel," doesn't she?" whispered Tina.

"Yes, she is—utterly beautiful," Dan answered.

Irene gazed at the young singer, entranced with wonder and awe. This ethereal creature, like a white and gold seraph—was she the girl she had seen rigid with shame and terror so short a time ago? This voice, floating softly but clearly through the hushed church, with ineffable sweetness of prayer—was this the voice that had mocked her and shocked her with its hardness and hate? This was Lilith standing there in the choir loft. Surely the two months in New York had been a hellish dream.

She relaxed with a sigh, to listen. . . . Then she glanced at Dan, and saw him gazing at Lilith with eyes that never wavered. Wonder and awe were on his face, too, and a dreamlike ecstasy, as of one who sees a vision.

She shivered. Lucky for them all that Dan was to marry Tina in three weeks now, and go away to Paris. Such beauty was dangerous for any young man to be exposed to even if he was engaged. Dan was a good catch—and rich. Who knows what might have happened if Lilith had been at home, before he fell in love with Tina? She might have bewitched him, instead of going to New York. One could never tell what Lilith might do. There mustn't be any clash between her and her father. . . .

When the rush of Tina's wedding was over, she'd do all she could to reconstruct Lilith's life. If she wanted New York—somehow it must be managed. Now Irene's brain held only plans for the wedding. Dancing imps of decorations, invitations, rehearsals, refreshments—she loved every detail of it, found in it compensation for the lack of such delight in her own marriage; but it was exacting, and the burden of it fell on her. Tina cared about nothing but that she was to be married to Dan.

The next evening Dan came to take Tina for a drive at sunset. They strolled into the garden, where Guinn was enjoying his cigar on the rustic bench and Irene was poking among her flowers, plucking off dead leaves, examining new buds.

"Poor flowers! Awfully neglected over this wedding."

Dan stepped forward eagerly at that cue. "I don't see why anything should be neglected, just for a church wedding. Tina and I'd a lot rather be married right off, with nobody to see us but the family. Wouldn't we, Tina?"

"Right." She tucked her hand in the crook of his arm.

"And I got the license today. So won't you just marry us now?"

Irene's heart gave a quiver of disappointment, then a leap of relief. It would be better so! She had looked forward to a real wedding when Tina was married, because she'd had none of the frills herself that all girls long for—but this would be wiser.

Guinn spoke over his cigar. "No, that wouldn't be fair to our friends. Better follow the plans. Only three weeks."

"I think these children are sensible, Guinn." Irene cut in. "We'll all be worn out by the time set. Let 'em escape."

"No, I don't want to lose my girl three weeks ahead of time. And the church folks all want to see her married."

"Guinn, don't be silly!" She gave him a little shake with hands wet from the sprinkler. "You and I just walked off and got married."

"Yes, and the Ladies' Aid have made a grievance about it ever since. We ought to have one proper wedding in the family."

"Oh, Father, do listen to reason!" Tina wheedled him. "I wish you would see it our way, sir," said Dan quietly. "After all it's our wedding, not the Ladies' Aid's." There was a white earnestness in his face, a gleam of appeal in his eyes. "I wish you'd consent. It means—a lot to me."

"And to me!" Tina sat down on the rustic bench beside her father, put her arms about his neck and laid her cheek against his. "Do say yes."

"Nope."

Irene straightened up indignantly. "Now, you're being unreasonable and stupid, Guinn Holden. This is Tina's wedding and Dan's, and they've got a right to have it as they like. You're taking a cruel advantage just because you're pastor as well as father. Otherwise they could escape to the Justice of the Peace — and serve you right!"

Tina sighed. "We don't want anybody but father to marry us. But it isn't fair of him not to—now."

"Only three weeks," came the unbudgable masculine edict.

Tina and Dan walked away through the garden, her rose-colored frock like a floating flower.

"Guinn, you had no right to treat these children like that. Call them back and marry them, here, now—in the garden, this minute."

He threw away his cigar butt.

"Woman, you are a sentimentalist and I refuse to be dominated by you. My mind is adjusted to three weeks from today."

She turned the water on full force and sprayed a flower bed so violently that the soil boiled and spattered her feet. Men were imbecile and so mulish you couldn't budge them. Man created in the image of God? How ridiculous an idea!

Lilith wandered out into the garden and sat down on the bench beside her father, looking like a ghost flower in her white dress.

"I sang for you yesterday in church. Now you're going to let me do what I wish, aren't you, father? I want to go to New York."

"I can't let you leave me, darling. You've been sick."

"I'm all right, really I am. And I've got to go. I must find myself."

"What's in New York that you've got to find?"

"It's a start—toward what I want, father."

He shook his head. "I can't consent for you to go."

"I must go! Mother, tell him I must!" She turned with a sort of wildness on her face.

Irene cut off the stream of water, dried her hands, to gain a moment's time to think. Oh, what was best for this poor, harried child?

"Guinn, she's well enough to go. I'm sure she'll be more careful after this. And if she has her heart set on going we must let her."

"So far away? I can't, Irene. She means too much to me."

"I understand. But you can't keep your children in your coat pocket all their lives. They're not just little pieces of you—they're themselves. If you clutch them you strangle them. I do think parents can be monsters of selfishness—choke a child to death and say, 'I can't let you go because I love you!'"

"Melodrama!" he sniffed. "Freud. Modern fiction."

"Cold truth," said Lilith. "Father, will you believe me when I tell you I've got to go?"

"No, honey. I can't."

She rose, pale and erect in the waning light. The gold of her hair was like a fading nimbus, her white dress like a ghost flower in the garden. Her face had again the waxy pallor, the hard defiance it had shown in New York.

"As you will, Father," she said, with ironic submissiveness.

When the wraith of her dress had vanished, Irene turned to him. "Guinn, you've acted perfectly terribly tonight!"

He fidgeted uncomfortably and refused to face her.

"You're like an unconscious villain in a play. You mean well, but you don't understand daughters. And you're heading for trouble."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

C. H. S. IS PRAISED

Editor of The Circleville Herald:
Dear Sir:

In answer to the letter which appeared in Monday's issue of The Herald, an article to the effect that Circleville high has a cowardly team. This statement is absolutely without basis.

Circleville high has a fighting team with a fine instructor, and they are willing to sacrifice their time and energy in order to bring the best honors to the school that is within their ability, and still some of the former men razz the team.

YES: Men who profess love for their Alma Mater stand up and publicly degrade it. If I were to do such an unsportsman like act I would be ashamed to admit it.

It was clearly stated that Circleville is so far from these other cities that it is financially unable to send teams to these places. If some of these former students are so anxious for Circleville to play these teams why don't they furnish the financial support?

Circleville's students and instructors are of the BEST and any one that questions the withdrawal from the S. C. O. league and thinks is afraid of any of these teams should show some of that so-called school patriotism and attend some of the games and see the fight that these boys put up against their foes.

It is an unsportsman like attitude that this individual is taking against C. H. S. and it remains to be seen that this former student will probably regret his statements when the C. H. S. teams show him up with their fighting spirit this next term.

Circleville high school is made of fighters every one of them, and every one of them is willing to fight in defense of the Red and Black.

If this former student cannot boost C. H. S. he should have enough respect about him not to knock it.

A Present Student.

DIET AND MENTALITY

A scientist, admitting that the average female brain is not quite as "human" as that of the male, assures the ladies the only reason is that through the ages they have done less thinking than their mates. More than that, he promises them equality with the mentally stronger sex if they will devote the next thousand years to intensive thought.

But studies completed by the Yale laboratories of physiologic chemistry and of psychology offer the girls a quicker way to mental equality. The studies, to be sure, were made on rats; and the professors do not say that what is true of rats is true of girls. But after all, of what good is scientific research if a layman may not play with its implications?

The Yale professors studied the effect of stunting on behavior in white rats. They divided otherwise similar rats into three groups, and put two of the groups on a rigorous stunting diet. Then they tried their rats out on a maze which led to good rat food. In every case the normally fat rats were slower at learning the intricate route to food than the dieted ones; and when they were set at a new problem, with a different maze, the stunted animals again showed greater speed. When they were returned to a normal rat diet, and regained their normal weight, the difference in "intelligence" disappeared.

That what is true of white mice may not be true of human beings is indicated by wartime studies which disclosed that the mental efficiency of the German soldiers diminished as their rations were reduced. But let not feminists be discouraged by this. Is there not a world of evidence that many of the world's greatest works of art were conceived and created on an empty stomach?

BASEBALL

The major baseball leagues have opened their seasons with popular acclaim and cheerful box office prospects. Baseball is more commercialized than it used to be, but it is not on that account losing its grip on the public. There are magnates on the players' benches as well as in the owners' sanctums. The king in the counting room is not the only king who is counting out his money.

The multiplying dignitaries and plutocrats of the sport have not spoiled it. It still provides alert competition, dramatic moments, suspense and the thrill of honest battle. Every team wants to win and tries to win.

All the clubs report themselves strengthened for the 1929 fray. The American League race promises to be much tighter this year than last. In the National league the hot rivalry of the last several years will be intensified by the appearance of some of the second column teams of last year as serious contenders for the league crown.

Every club feels like a winner in April. May that frame of mind continue in both leagues until late in the summer, at least. It will not be a successful season in any league, whether major or minor or sand lot, if one team jumps too far in the lead early in the season.

CASCADE TUNNEL BREAKS RECORDS

Bore Through Washington Mountains Is Longest in America.

Giant Cascade Tunnel Ranks Fifth in Length

Among the world's other tunnel projects, the new Cascade bore ranks fifth in length, those exceeding it being in Europe. The world's longest bores are:

Simplon, 65,734 feet (12.4 miles).
St. Gotthard, 48,893 feet (9.26 miles).
Loetschberg, 47,685 feet (9.03 miles).
Mont Cenis, 42,150 feet (7.97 miles).
New Cascade, 41,142 feet (7.79 miles).
Moffatt, 30,500 feet (6.40 miles).
Rogers Pass, 37,540 feet (6.11 miles).

Scenic, Wash.—When a railroad wants an eight-mile tunnel built in three years records have to be shattered. Hard bitten pneumatic drill men and horny-handed muckers are looking for new jobs after three years' work in constructing the Cascade bore.

It was three years ago that the Great Northern directors voted to spend $14,000,000 building a tunnel that would eliminate six miles of costly snowsheds, lower the summit of the line 502 feet and discard 1,944 degrees of track curvature. They decided also they wanted it in three years.

In addition to the construction of the tunnel the Great Northern has relocated all but seven miles of the former 56-mile route over the Cascades and the electrification of the 74 miles of line between Wenatchee and Skykomish, which includes the new tunnel. Altogether the project will cost $74,000,000,000.

America's Longest Tunnel.

On December 28, 1925, contractors started tunneling operations. On October 20, 1928, there was a continuous bore and today the finished tunnel, 7.97 miles long, lined with 250,000 cubic yards of concrete, is in use by passenger, mail and freight trains, pulled by mighty electric locomotives. Between these two dates more records were smashed than in a modern Olympiad. The finished tunnel, longest in America, nearly two miles more in length than the recently completed Moffatt bore in Colorado, was drilled by twice the yearly mileage and will show a concreted job, as compared with unlined tunnels of comparable lengths through the European Alps, that took seven to fourteen years.

Drilling crews in the Cascades established a world's record when they excavated 984 feet of the 26 by 18 feet bore in September, 1926. Then in June, 1927, this feat was outdone when 1,164 feet were tunneled during 31 days' work.

The secret of the rapid progress rested with the new plan of drilling a "pioneer" tunnel, paralleling the route of the main bore. From this auxiliary tunnel drifts were run at seven points to the route of the main bore, permitting 1,793 men to work simultaneously. All rock and debris from the big tunnel were removed through the pioneer while concrete workers followed closely behind the completed cut.

Straight as a Needle.

The old railroad line between Scenic and Berne, the east portal, was 18 miles long. Coming from Berne, a train had to climb 1,325 feet, pass through six tunnels and six miles of snow sheds. Five of the tunnels were short, the sixth almost three miles long. Once reaching the summit of the road, the train descended into Scenic, 546 feet in a few miles, almost as hard on the locomotives as pulling up to the top. The weight of a railroad train runs into enormous tonnage and to drag up or hold back on mountain grades is a herculean feat; it costs money, too. The climb is not all the new tunnel saves. If all the old curves were added together they would form just six complete circles, while this new tunnel is as straight as a needle.

The longest railroad tunnel already built in the western hemisphere is the Rogers Pass bore, about six and one-half miles long on the Canadian Pacific. The new tunnel now ready for through service is one mile longer and large enough for double-tracking facilities. Besides it is the only large tunnel in the world electrified.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is praparing wedding plans for her marri[illegible] handsome, local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXVII.

"LILITH would be a good name for an opera singer," mused Dan.

"She was named for her mother," the father said hastily.

The girl smiled and looked at Irene. "Adams first wife was named Lilith. She was a sorceress, wasn't she, mother?"

"I believe that is the tradition," Irene answered in an even tone.

"The Talmud says that," Guinn added.

On next Sunday morning Lilith sang a solo in the church. Her white crepe de Chine dress, whose soft lines made her look slenderer than ever, and a close-fitting little white hat with a blue flower on it showed her gold hair underneath the tiny brim and brought out the blue of her eyes, the pink flush of her cheeks, made her look lovely, with a touch of the unearthly about her. Her eyes had a far-off gaze and her cheeks a more delicate flush as she began to sing.

Irene was sitting in the pew with Pat on one side of her and Tina on the other, with Dan beside Tina, next to the aisle. She had to look past these two to see the choir loft where Lilith was standing.

"Looks like a bobbed-haired angel," doesn't she?" whispered Tina.

"Yes, she is—utterly beautiful," Dan answered.

Irene gazed at the young singer, entranced with wonder and awe. This ethereal creature, like a white and gold seraph—was she the girl she had seen rigid with shame and terror so short a time ago? This voice, floating softly but clearly through the hushed church, with ineffable sweetness of prayer—was this the voice that had mocked her and shocked her with its hardness and hate? This was Lilith standing there in the choir loft. Surely the two months in New York had been a hellish dream.

She relaxed with a sigh, to listen. . . . Then she glanced at Dan, and saw him gazing at Lilith with eyes that never wavered. Wonder and awe were on his face, too, and a dreamlike ecstasy, as of one who sees a vision.

She shivered. Lucky for them all that Dan was to marry Tina in three weeks now, and go away to Paris. Such beauty was dangerous for any young man to be exposed to even if he was engaged. Dan was a good catch—and rich. Who knows what might have happened if Lilith had been at home, before he fell in love with Tina? She might have bewitched him, instead of going to New York. One could never tell what Lilith might do. There mustn't be any clash between her and her father. . . .

When the rush of Tina's wedding was over, she'd do all she could to reconstruct Lilith's life. If she wanted New York—somehow it must be managed. Now, Irene's brain held only plans for the wedding. Dancing imps of decorations, invitations, rehearsals, refreshments—she loved every detail of it, found in it compensation for the lack of such delight in her own marriage; but it was exacting, and the burden of it fell on her. Tina cared about nothing but that she was to be married to Dan.

The next evening Dan came to take Tina for a drive at sunset. They strolled into the garden, where Guinn was enjoying his cigar on the rustic bench and Irene was poking among her flowers, plucking off dead leaves, examining new buds.

"Poor flowers! Awfully neglected over this wedding."

Dan stepped forward eagerly at that cue. "I don't see why anything should be neglected, just for a church wedding. Tina and I'd a lot rather be married right off, with nobody to see us but the family. Wouldn't we, Tina?"

"Right." She tucked her hand in the crook of his arm.

"And I got the license today. So won't you just marry us now?"

Irene's heart gave a quiver of disappointment, then a leap of relief. It would be better so! She had looked forward to a real wedding when Tina was married, because she'd had none of the frills herself that all girls long for—but this would be wiser.

Guinn spoke over his cigar. "No, that wouldn't be fair to our friends. Better follow the plans. Only three weeks."

"I think these children are sensible, Guinn." Irene cut in. "We'll all be worn out by the time set. Let 'em escape."

"No. I don't want to lose my girl three weeks ahead of time. And the church folks all want to see her married."

"Guinn, don't be silly!" She gave him a little shake with hands wet from the sprinkler. "You and I just walked off and got married."

"Yes, and the Ladies' Aid have made a grievance about it ever since. We ought to have one proper wedding in the family."

"Oh, Father, do listen to reason!" Tina wheedled him. "I wish you would see it our way, sir," said Dan quietly. "After all it's our wedding, not the Ladies' Aid's." There was a white earnestness in his face, a gleam of appeal in his eyes. "I wish you'd consent. It means—a lot to me."

"And to me!" Tina sat down on the rustic bench beside her father, put her arms about his neck and laid her cheek against his. "Do say yes."

"Nope."

Irene straightened up indignantly. "Now, you're being unreasonable and stupid, Guinn Holden. This is Tina's wedding and Dan's, and they've got a right to have it as they like. You're taking a cruel advantage just because you're pastor as well as father. Otherwise they could escape to the Justice of the Peace—and serve you right!"

Tina sighed. "We don't want anybody but father to marry us. But it isn't fair of him not to—now."

"Only three weeks," came the unbudgable masculine edict.

Tina and Dan walked away through the garden, her rose-colored frock like a floating flower.

"Guinn, you had no right to treat these children like that. Call them back and marry them here, now—in the garden, this minute."

He threw away his cigar butt.

"Woman, you are a sentimentalist and I refuse to be dominated by you. My mind is adjusted to three weeks from today."

She turned the water on full force and sprayed a flower bed so violently that the soil boiled and spattered her feet. Men were imbecile and so mulish you couldn't budge them. Man created in the image of God? How ridiculous an idea!

Lilith wandered out into the garden and sat down on the bench beside her father, looking like a ghost flower in her white dress.

"I sang for you yesterday in church. Now you're going to let me do what I wish, aren't you, father? I want to go to New York."

"I can't let you leave me, darling. You've been sick."

"I'm all right, really I am. And I've got to go. I must find myself."

"What's in New York that you've got to find?"

"It's a start—toward what I want, father."

He shook his head. "I can't consent for you to go."

"I must go! Mother, tell him I must!" She turned with a sort of wildness on her face.

Irene cut off the stream of water, dried her hands, to gain a moment's time to think. Oh, what was best for this poor, harried child?

"Guinn, she's well enough to go. I'm sure she'll be more careful after this. And if she has her heart set on going we must let her."

"So far away? I can't, Irene. She means too much to me."

"I understand. But you can't keep your children in your coat pocket all their lives. They're not just little pieces of you—they're themselves. If you clutch them you strangle them. I do think parents can be monsters of selfishness—choke a child to death and say, 'I can't let you go because I love you.'"

"Melodrama!" he sniffed. "Freud. Modern fiction."

"Cold truth," said Lilith. "Father, will you believe me when I tell you I've got to go?"

"No, honey. I can't."

She rose, pale and erect in the waning light. The gold of her hair was like a fading nimbus, her white dress like a ghost flower in the garden. Her face had again the waxy pallor, the hard defiance it had shown in New York.

"As you will, Father," she said, with ironic submissiveness.

When the wraith of her dress had vanished, Irene turned to him. "Guinn, you've acted perfectly terribly tonight!"

He fidgeted uncomfortably and refused to face her.

"You're like an unconscious villain in a play. You mean well, but you don't understand daughters. And you're heading for trouble."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

C. H. S. IS PRAISED

Editor of The Circleville Herald:
Dear Sir:

In answer to the letter which appeared in Monday's issue of The Herald, an article to the effect that Circleville high has a cowardly team. This statement is absolutely without basis.

Circleville high has a fighting team with a fine instructor, and they are willing to sacrifice their time and energy in order to bring the best honors to the school that is within their ability, and still some of the former men razz the team.

YES: Men who profess love for their Alma Mater stand up and publicly degrade it. If I were to do such an unsportsman like act I would be ashamed to admit it.

It was clearly stated that Circleville is so far from these other cities that it is financially unable to send teams to these places. If some of these former students are so anxious for Circleville to play these teams why don't they furnish the financial support?

Circleville's students and instructors are of the BEST and any one that questions the withdrawal from the S. C. O. league and thinks is afraid of any of these teams should show some of that so-called school patriotism and attend some of the games and see the fight that these boys put up against their foes.

It is an unsportsman like attitude that this individual is taking against C. H. S. and it remains to be seen that this former student will probably regret his statements when the C. H. S. teams show him up with their fighting spirit this next term.

Circleville high school is made of fighters every one of them, and every one of them is willing to fight in defense of the Red and Black.

If this former student cannot boost C. H. S. he should have enough respect about him not to knock it.

A Present Student.

The Appointed Place

The big business man had died and gone to—well not to heaven But hardly had he settled down for a nice long smoke when a hearty hand slapped him on the back, and into his ear boomed the voice of a persistent salesman who had pestered him much on earth.

"Well, Mr. Smith," chortled the salesman, "I'm here for the appointment"

"What appointment?"

"Why don't you remember?" the salesman went on "Every time I came into your office you told me you'd see me here!"

Music in the Air

Do You Know Your Music?

THE third and fourth movements of Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony will be played by the National Orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, Friday morning in the next educational concert.

The first two movements were broadcast two weeks ago The opening movement was in sonata form and the second was a slow and intense movement with its "surprise" chords, originally intended by Haydn, a practical joker, as a means of awakening any sleepy members of the audience.

The third movement with which the next program opens is a minuet Haydn directed that it should be played more vivaciously than it was customary to play the stately minuet for purposes of dancing The fourth movement of the symphony which will be played in the latter half of the period is in the form of the Rondo, a happy dance popular among the country folk of Haydn's time

Clip this article and listen-in to the RCA Educational Hour, Friday morning, April 19th, over WJZ or its associated stations in the NBC network. Then test yourself by answering the following questions which Mr. Damrosch prepared for junior high school students. The answers will be printed here next week together with a new set of questions for the succeeding concert

1—Q. What type of composition usually constitutes the third movement in the Symphonies of Haydn?
2—Q What is a Minuet?
3—Q. What is the measure of the Minuet?
4—Q Is the tempo of the Minuet slow or fast?
5—Q. What is the final movement of a Symphony usually called?
6—Q In what form did Haydn usually compose the Finales of his Symphonies?
7—Q. Give a brief description of Rondo form.
8—Q. What is the character of the Finale in Rondo form?

The answers to the questions on the April 12th concert follow:

1—Q. What is a Symphonic Poem?
A. A composition for orchestra, in one movement, which relates or expresses in musical language some dramatic story or poetic idea
2—Q. Who originated the Symphonic Poem?
A. Franz Liszt
3—Q. In what form is the Symphonic Poem composed?
A. It has no set form. The form of each Symphonic Poem is conditioned by the story or idea it has to express
4—Q What poetic idea is expressed in Liszt's Symphonic Poem "Les Preludes"?
A. The suggestion, derived from Lamartine's "Meditations Poetiques," that life on earth is but a series of preludes to the life hereafter.
5—Q What do the introductory measures of "Les Preludes" express?
A A wistful questioning, as if the composer asked "What is the meaning of Life?"
6—Q. What does the second part of the Symphonic Poem express?
A. The idea that "The enchanted dawn of every life is love"
7—Q. What does the third part describe?
A. The storm "whose deadly blast disperses youth's illusions"
8 Q What does the fourth part represent?
A The peace and solace one finds amid the calm beauties of Nature.
9—Q What is symbolized in the fifth part?
A. Man's readiness to forsake the tranquillity of pastoral life and to throw himself headlong into strife and turmoil whenever and wherever duty calls.
10—Q What does the concluding part of the work represent?
A Man's exultation when, through strife, he has gained "full knowledge of himself and of his strength."

Cromwell's Music

Before Oliver Cromwell became Protector, music was proscribed in England And as Cromwell was musically inclined he had a professional musician among the members of his household When, by authority of parliament, the organ was removed from the chapel of Magdalen college. Cromwell had it erected at Hampton court, where he resided, and frequently had Milton to play it At the Restoration the organ was returned to Magdalen college, but after some years it was disposed of and re-erected in Tewkesbury abbey, where part of it remained in use until a few years ago.

Presents of Mind

The small son of the house just informed his parents that he had been dreaming during the night

"Well, and what did you dream about?" asked his father

"I dreamt that you gave me a pedalling motor car daddy," began the small boy, "and mother gave me a box of soldiers"

"But you know, dear, that dreams always mean the opposite"

"Oh yes!" The youngster was undismayed "But, then, I shall get the soldiers from you, an' mum she'll give me the motor."

N AND ABOUT THE STATE HOUSE

A Department of News Service
nd Cooperation for Herald
Readers

To Herald Readers:
The writer is a Country Edi- or whose duties at the State House afford him opportunity to write of happenings and condi- ions in and about the Capitol which should prove of especial nterest to The Circleville Her- ld readers.

A feature of this department, hrough special arrangement etween The Herald and the epartment of Agriculture, is hat readers may feel free to ddress inquiries and communi- ations touching on matters onnected with any governmen- al activities in the Capitol to The Herald, Care Department of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

itor, The Herald:

A trip down to the Ohio river d back to Columbus a week o, revealed to us the seasonal ferences within 100 miles. In e Ohio valley fruit blossoms re in full bloom and the air len with sweet odors. Around lumbus, and farther north, buds nd leaves had not begun to ep out. The southern part of e state is fully two weeks ead. Record fruit prospects ve been reported to the Depart- ent of Agriculture, from the uthern sections.

JUNIOR FAIRS GET O. K.

Junior Fairs—by, of and for the uth of the state—have receiv- the approval of Director Per- L. Green of the Department of riculture. The Ashley fair has successfully used the junior fair ea, that it is now proposed to roduce the innovation at the ate Fair and many of the coun- fairs of the state this year, d a state junior fair managers' sociation is planned. C. E. Ash- ook originated the plan and is pected to be in charge of the nior state fair activities.

NO MORE CROSSES

They say over in the Highway partment that no more white sses are to be erected in Ohio mark sites of fatal auto acci- nts. Those now in place will main. The proud claim is made that Ohio highways are best marked of any state in the Union, being 100 per cent marked. There are 18,256 federal traffic guides, and 50,432 state markers of various kinds along highways, not including 7,500 "turn" markers.

IMPROVED MARKET SERVICE

Ohio farmers and others interested in farm market prices are to have advantage of expansion of agriculture market news service after July 1. This is to be done by closer cooperation between the state and federal departments of agriculture and additional leased wire service.

The state fruit and vegetable standardization and markets and marketing bureaus are being united in a new bureau of markets, in charge of Chief C. W. Waid of Columbus. These leased wire reports on fruit, vegetable and live stock markets, are to be broadcast daily over WEAO, and are to be made available for local and state daily and weekly newspapers and for special mailing.

A NEWCOMER BIRD

There is a new bird taking up residence in nearly all parts of Ohio, and this may help in its identification. It is the European Starling, about the size of the robin, but the short drooping tail gives it a "chunky, humped-back appearance," they say in the Fish and Game Division. "The general body color is a gray mottled-black, but during the greater part of the year the feathers on parts of the body reflect irridescent purple, green and blue. Its sharp pointed beak from early spring to the middle of June is a pronounced yellow. Later in the year the bill turns dark." The general opinion seems to be that on the whole the starling is a desirable species ,although it does like cherries. It is death on crop destroying insects. —Ye Country Editor.

Proper Use of Hammer

The muscles in a workman's hand, arm, shoulder and back become a part of a machine in using a hammer. All useless strain caused by gripping the handle too hard or by holding some muscle tense, when it might be relaxed, should be avoided. The hand should grasp the handle near the end, and the grip should be relaxed just when the nail is hit.

88TH LEGISLATURE ENDS ITS SESSION

COLUMBUS, O., April 17— The Eighty-Eighth general assembly of Ohio had passed into history today.

At a brief routine session yesterday, the solons sent 159 signed bills to the governor, upon which that chief executive must act within ten days.

Probably more important than the session was the sentiment expressed over Senator George H. Bender's so-called "equal representation referendum." Members of both houses, either announced their opposition or remained silent, which boded ill for the fight for reapportionment of the state legislature being made by the Cleveland "war-horse.'

How One Man Saved $338.00 on His Home

The Circleville Lumber Co.
Circleville, Ohio

Gentlemen:

Since the completion of my new home on S. Court St., the material for which I purchased from you, am sure you will be glad to know that the cost was about $338.00 less than that asked by the mail-order concern's Ready Cut house I had thought of buying. This savings was equal to more than 50% of the carpenter labor required to build the house besides the bother and expense of hauling the material from the railroad station to the job.

The material you furnished, I am sure was equal to or better than specified in their catalogs and I was well pleased with your plans and blue prints which was an exact duplicate of the house I had in mind.

I was surprised and glad to know that we are able to purchase building materials in Circleville at such reasonable prices.

Yours sincerely

IMPROVED MARKET SERVICE

Ohio farmers and others interested in farm market prices are to have advantage of expansion of agriculture market news service after July 1. This is to be done by closer cooperation between the state and federal departments of agriculture and additional leased wire service.

The state fruit and vegetable standardization and markets and marketing bureaus are being united in a new bureau of markets, in charge of Chief C. W. Waid of Columbus. These leased wire reports on fruit, vegetable and live stock markets, are to be broadcast daily over WEAO, and are to be made available for local and state daily and weekly newspapers and for special mailing.

A NEWCOMER BIRD

There is a new bird taking up residence in nearly all parts of Ohio, and this may help in its identification. It is the European Starling, about the size of the robin, but the short drooping tail gives it a "chunky, humped-back appearance," they say in the Fish and Game Division. "The general body color is a gray mottled black, but during the greater part of the year the feathers on parts of the body reflect irridescent purple, green and blue. Its sharp pointed beak from early spring to the middle of June is a pronounced yellow. Later in the year the bill turns dark." The general opinion seems to be that on the whole the starling is a desirable species ,although it does like cherries. It is death on crop destroying insects. —Ye Country Editor.

Proper Use of Hammer

The muscles in a workman's hand, arm, shoulder and back become a part of a machine in using a hammer. All useless strain caused by gripping the handle too hard or by holding some muscle tense, when it might be relaxed, should be avoided. 88TH LEGISLATURE ENDS ITS SESSION

COLUMBUS, O., April 17— The Eighty-Eighth general assembly of Ohio had passed into history today.

At a brief routine session yesterday, the solons sent 159 signed bills to the governor, upon which that chief executive must act within ten days.

Probably more important than the session was the sentiment expressed over Senator George H. Bender's so-called "equal representation referendum." Members of both houses, either announced their opposition or remained silent, which boded ill for the fight for reapportionment of the state legislature being made by the Cleveland "war-horse.'

OBITUARY

Sarah Elizabeth, only daughter of Peter and Mary Kashner Myers, entered upon this earthly career Oct. 6th, 1862, and departed April 12th, 1929, making a stay with us of 66 years, seven months and six days.

In the year, 1883, June 7th, she was united in marriage to Harvey A. Mowery. Four children were born to them one dying in infancy. They are Nadie R., wife of Carl C. Kreider of Tarlton; Willis F., of Tarlton, and Charles P., of Circleville. She leaves a loving husband, three children and five grandchildren; Kenneth K., Claude C., Lucia L. Kreider, Charles Junior and Joan Mowery. She also acted the part of mother to Myrtle Mowery, wife of Ernest Thomas of Sugar Grove, O., who came under her care at the age of eight years. Two brothers; George M., and Charles P. Myers, of Columbus, O., besides a host of relatives and friends.

From the very earliest of her life she was affiliated with some church and putting her utmost into the work for the same. As a member of the W. C. T. U., Women's Foreign Missionary society and the Ladies' Aid, she leaves a vacancy hard to fill.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

God in His wisdom has recalled,
The boon His love had given,
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our kind neighbors, friends, and relatives for their help and sympathy during the sickness and death of our loved one, Sarah E. Mowery.

We are grateful to the choir and friends for the beautiful floral tributes and for the considered service and helpful and comforting words of Rev. M. L. Woodard and also for service of Mr. Defenbaugh.

STOMACH TROUBLE QUICKLY ROUTED BY NEW KONJOLA

Every Meal Was Source of Suffering—Strict Diet of No Avail—Now Enjoys Perfect Health.

MR. H. W. EGGENBERG.

"As my health had been failing for some time and a good medicine was needed, I chose Konjola and was rewarded by the restoration of my health," said Mr. H. W. Eggenberg, 865 East High Avenue, New Philadelphia.

"I was the victim of stomach trouble, and after each meal partly digested food formed a heavy, sodden mass in the pit of my stomach. Gas fermented and indigestion pains added their agonies to my suffering.

"As the medicine for my system, I decided upon Konjola and now I wish to say that the results were far beyond my expectations. I recently finished the full treatment—six bottles—and my stomach is functioning perfectly. I can eat anything I wish without suffering afterward. My bowels have been regulated and invigorated. I feel sure that Konjola has saved me from some serious trouble, and I am glad to be able to add my name to the already long list of life long friends of Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, at Hamilton & Ryan drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The Appointed Place

The big business man had died and gone to—well not to heaven But hardly had he settled down for a nice long smoke when a hearty hand slapped him on the back, and into his ear boomed the voice of a persistent salesman who had pestered him much on earth.

"Well, Mr. Smith," chortled the salesman, "I'm here for the appointment."

"What appointment?"

"Why, don't you remember?" the salesman went on. "Every time I came into your office you told me you'd see me here!"

Music in the Air

Do You Know Your Music?

THE third and fourth movements of Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony will be played by the National Orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, Friday morning in the next educational concert.

The first two movements were broadcast two weeks ago. The opening movement was in sonata form and the second was a slow andante movement with its "surprise" chords, originally intended by Haydn, a practical joker, as a means of awakening any sleepy members of the audience.

The third movement with which the next program opens is a minuet. Haydn directed that it should be played more vivaciously than it was customary to play the stately minuet for purposes of dancing. The fourth movement of the symphony which will be played in the latter half of the period is in the form of the Rondo, a happy dance popular among the country folk of Haydn's time.

Clip this article and listen-in to the RCA Educational Hour, Friday morning, April 19th, over WJZ or its associated stations in the NBC network. Then test yourself by answering the following questions which Mr. Damrosch prepared for junior high school students. The answers will be printed here next week together with a new set of questions for the succeeding concert.

1—Q. What type of composition usually constitutes the third movement in the Symphonies of Haydn?
2—Q. What is a Minuet?
3—Q. What is the measure of the Minuet?
4—Q. Is the tempo of the Minuet slow or fast?
5—Q. What is the final movement of a Symphony usually called?
6—Q. In what form did Haydn usually compose the Finales of his Symphonies?
7—Q. Give a brief description of Rondo form.
8—Q. What is the character of the Finale in Rondo form?

The answers to the questions on the April 12th concert follow:

1—Q. What is a Symphonic Poem?
A. A composition for orchestra, in one movement, which relates or expresses in musical language some dramatic story or poetic idea.
2—Q. Who originated the Symphonic Poem?
A. Franz Liszt
3—Q. In what form is the Symphonic Poem composed?
A. It has no set form. The form of each Symphonic Poem is conditioned by the story or idea it has to express.
4—Q. What poetic idea is expressed in Liszt's Symphonic Poem "Les Preludes"?
A. The suggestion, derived from Lamartine's "Meditations Poetiques," that life on earth is but a series of preludes to the life hereafter.
5—Q. What do the introductory measures of "Les Preludes" express?
A. A wistful questioning, as if the composer asked "What is the meaning of Life?"
6—Q. What does the second part of the Symphonic Poem express?
A. The idea that "The enchanted dawn of every life is love."
7—Q. What does the third part describe?
A. The storm "whose deadly blast disperses youth's illusions."
8.Q. What does the fourth part represent?
A. The peace and solace one finds amid the calm beauties of Nature.
9—Q. What is symbolized in the fifth part?
A. Man's readiness to forsake the tranquillity of pastoral life and to throw himself headlong into strife and turmoil whenever and wherever duty calls.
10—Q. What does the concluding part of the work represent?
A. Man's exultation when, through strife, he has gained "full knowledge of himself and of his strength."

Cromwell's Music

Before Oliver Cromwell became Protector, music was proscribed in England. And as Cromwell was musically inclined, he had a professional musician among the members of his household. When, by authority of parliament, the organ was removed from the chapel of Magdalen college, Cromwell had it erected at Hampton court, where he resided, and frequently had Milton to play it. At the Restoration the organ was returned to Magdalen college, but after some years it was disposed of and re-erected in Tewkesbury abbey, where part of it remained in use until a few years ago.

Early Inscriptions

Josephus, historian of the First century B. C., said the art of writing was very old—that he had seen inscriptions by Seth, son of Adam.

Presents of Mind

The small son of the house had just informed his parents that he had been dreaming during the night.

"Well, and what did you dream about?" asked his father.

"I dreamt that you gave me a pedaling motor car, daddy," began the small boy, "and mother gave me a box of soldiers."

"But you know, dear, that dreams always mean the opposite."

"Oh, yes!" The youngster was undismayed. "But, then, I shall get the soldiers from you, an' mum she'll give me the motor."
